William Cook was a minister in Friends Church. Came home from Tennessee about 1865 with spotted fever. His brother-in-law Albert Hadley caught the fever and died later (see 7-481)

William Cook died one day from the fever, his daughter Mary died the next day and his widow, Edith, the next. Mary and her mother were buried in the same grave. Silas died about a week later from it and Hannah about a month later. In about a year Jesse died. Mahlon took it when about 3 years of age, being one of the first to take it. It settled in his eyes, one burst, but he was blinded in both eyes. He died from the same cause or the effects of it when about 12 years of age. Mahlon went to Blind school about 2 years before he died

Robert A. Hadley was Governor of Mo. and on account of ill health left that State at the close of his term of office.

Under date of Sept. 26. 1922 he wrote from University of Colo.

School of Law, Boulder, Colo., in reply to enquiry, that of the 4 sons of his grandfather, all were then dead, with the possible exception of James, and so far as he knew he was the only living male descendant of his grandfather (excepting his 2 sons, presumably) That his grandfather "came to Kansas in '55 to take charge of a Quaker mission near the present site of Kansas City"

Request for further data or references, so far has not met with response.
